JOYCE OGDEN

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2
BALL HALL AUDITORIUM 7 PM

Through her work, Indiana-based artist Joyce Ogden explores the relationship of humans to nature, time and space. Her explorations and observations of soil, sap, sand, seeds, pods and natural elements result in natural and telling artworks. Ogden earned a Master of Fine Arts degree in fibers and sculpture at Indiana University-Bloomington, in 1990. She has taught studio art at Spalding University since 1993, where her teaching bridges interests in studio production and community-based art. Her work has been exhibited throughout the South and Midwest. She will give a talk on her process and will work with students while at ETSU.
